

SEED BOMBS

This is what you need to make about 15 seed bombs:

- 1/2 kg of clay
- 2 small handfuls of compost
- quarter cup of water
- wildflower seeds

Start by tearing the clay into small pieces in a large bowl. Add compost and start mixing it together with your hands. Pour in the seeds with a tiny amount of water, and continue mixing. The exact proportions are not important, start with just a small amount of water and add more later if needed. Make sure to break up any chunks of clay or compost. If the mixture too wet, add compost; if it's too dry, add water. The finished mixture should be like cookie dough; not too sticky, but not dry either.

Grab small handfuls of the mixture and roll them into balls. Set them aside to dry on a newspaper for 1-2 days.
